Practice

Bankruptcy and Financial Restructuring

Litigation

Steve is the firm's General Counsel and previously served as Assistant General Counsel. As chief legal officer, he is responsible for overseeing Stevens & Lee's legal matters, including providing ethics and compliance advice to the firm's attorneys. In this capacity, he also works closely with the firm's executive team to provide advice and counsel on all aspects of enterprise risk management and loss prevention.

In addition to his role as General Counsel, Steve maintains an active practice as a 37-year member of the Litigation and Bankruptcy Departments. He concentrates in creditor's rights, including commercial collections and foreclosures, collateral repossessions, receivables collections, commercial bankruptcy proceedings and all aspects of post-judgment enforcement activity. He also represents construction industry clients in prosecuting their rights under Pennsylvania's mechanics' lien and payment bond laws, and he defends residential mortgage lenders and servicers from all types of consumer lending litigation claims.

Among Steve's clients are national, regional and local financial institutions, mortgage servicers, agricultural lending associations, manufacturers, service providers and large building material supply companies.
