Practice

Corporate, Finance and Capital Markets

Justin has experience counseling investors and corporate clients ranging in size from individual entrepreneurs to publicly traded entities. He counsels his clients with respect to a broad range of transactions including advising companies and investors on raising capital, restructuring of capitalization, mergers and acquisitions, private equity exits and general corporate governance. He also advises concerning compliance with or exemption from regulations in private financings and investments; intellectual property development, licensing, and protection; and day-to-day operation of small and mid-size companies.

Justin counsels clients throughout the course of their business lifecycles starting with corporate formation, formulating business strategies, employment agreements and compensation plans, complex contract negotiation and drafting, and licensing of intellectual property. He also advises on the preparation of business plan memoranda and in formulating presentations to investors.
